Gentlemen:-

Will you kindly inform me if you would be interested to examine, with a view to purchase, a small collection of Russian coins. The collection contains coins from hundreds of years ago, copper pieces, two inches in diameter, to the most recent silver of the present administration in Russia. There is also a three ruble gold piece, 1874 which I understand is quite rare.

I have also a gold piece. Georgius III. 1790 the denomination of which is not on the coin.

If interested, I would be glad to bring the coins in for examination.

Very truly

George W. Osborn,

Dear Sir:

We have a fairly large collection of Russian coins and would not be interested in buying your coins as a collection, though we might buy a few. If you care to bring them in, we would be pleased to look them over.

Very truly yours,

Curator
